Housing Finance has joined the Kenswitch ATM network.

The company's more than 40,000 savings account holders will access their accounts at any Kenswitch ATM across the country.

Kenswitch consists of a consortium of banks under the National Payment System Modernisation and Reform Process of Central Bank of Kenya. It has a system that allows members to share ATM services instead of each of them operating an independent network. Kenswitch general manager George Wainaina said the consortium was improving its software to provide efficient and innovative services.

Housing Finance director of business development Ken Kinyua said the subscription was facilitated by the bank's recent investment in a modern banking software, Equinox, which supports innovative products. Kenswitch now has 13 members.
